

Tickets available for High Holy Days

■ Calabasas-based Congregation Or Ami will hold its Jewish High Holy Day services for the fourth year in the Kavli Theatre, Thousand Oaks Civic Arts Plaza, 2100 E. T.O. Blvd.

Rosh Hashana celebrates the Jewish New Year of 5779, beginning Sun. and Mon., Sept. 9 and 10.

The 10 days of awe will culminate on the holiest holy day, Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, on Tues. and Wed., Sept. 18 and 19.

“We offer something entirely different that incorporates all the traditions but done in way that inspires, and those who come say it’s an uplifting spiritual reset. All this in a comfortable, embracing setting that makes everyone feel welcome and a part of the service,” said Rabbi Paul Kipnes of Or Ami.

The congregation transforms the theater into a multisensory experience that claims to “bring everyone into the fold.”

“Ask anyone that has ever been, and they’ll tell you it’s amazing because we take every inch of this large theater, the music, the message, the traditions, and mix it in a modern way that resonates into the soul and senses. Newcomers feel instantly at home,” said Cantor Doug Cotler of Or Ami.

Ticket discounts are available for first-time attendees.
